INTRODUCTION

Sustainable social development is one of the most important goals of almost all developing and least developed countries across the world. Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) have now turned into a more inclusive development plan that aims to end poverty, protect the planet and ensure peace and prosperity for all. SDGs attempt to fight poverty and unite ourselves to bring a positive change for the humankind and the planet as well. Considering the aforementioned issues the Department of Social Work, Shahjalal University of Science & Technology is going to arrange a 2nd International Conference on “Social Work and Sustainable Social Development” to be held from 5-7 January 2023. The conference will focus on debates relating to social work and sustainable social development from interdisciplinary perspectives. It is hoped that the participants will make precious deliberations on these issues which may produce important innovations and new thinking to attain the aims and targets of SDGs.
